

Self-paid Covid-19 Tests Available During Lunar New Year

In an effort to ease access to COVID-19 testing, today the Central Epidemic Command Center (CECC) released the list of designated hospitals nationwide where self-paid testing is available. Relevant information on the time of testing, fees, and rapid testing was also announced to help travelers who return to Taiwan for the holidays and need test reports for departure acquire test reports at designated hospitals.

To protect people's rights and maintain Taiwan's testing capacity, the CECC has listed 84 hospitals across the country where self-paid COVID-19 testing is available, among which 57 will continue providing such services during the Lunar New Year. More information is published on the Taiwan Centers for Disease Control website, available in a document titled "Application regulations for available self-paid COVID-19 tests" in the "Guidelines on infection control in medical care institutions" under the section of COVID-19. People can also call the hospital or visit the hospital's website for more information before the testing.
